

TWIN CITIES GREEN PRODUCT AND SERVICE DIRECTORY

A Report to the Mayors of Minneapolis and St. Paul, the Blue Green Alliance, and the MN Department of Commerce

Alfred Marcus, Kevin Triemstra, and David Miel

With assistance from Carlson School of Management students Greg Videen, Benjamin Strasheim, Christine Jauregui, John Hardy, Mike Norris, Kelsey Robinson

November 2, 2012 (updated)¹
Version 3.0

The authors also would like to acknowledge the help they received from Linda Limback, Oriane Casale, Candace Campbell, Emily Stern, Andrew Dahl, Jack Hogin, Katrina Mitchell, Ellen Watters, Marc Anderson, Tim Nolan, Rolf Nordstrom, Dave Foster, John Dybvig, Mark Schiller, Gregg Mast, Tara Vogelgesang, Emily Goellner and many others.

¹ The original version of this directory was published on July 16, 2009. The directory was last updated on October 9, 2012. Updates reflect companies that either 1) no longer exist, 2) have changed their name, 3) have new contact information, or 4) been added to the directory. All figures relating to number of companies have been altered accordingly.

Executive Summary

This green product and service directory is a continuation of the Making It Green report, an initiative of Mayor R.T. Rybak in Minneapolis, Mayor Christopher B. Coleman in Saint Paul, and the Blue Green Alliance, a national partnership of the Sierra Club and the United Steel Workers.

The sponsors of our work include the city mayors of Minneapolis and St. Paul, the Blue Green Alliance, and the MN Department of Commerce. This report covers the Minnesota-based Twin Cities metropolitan region and not the entire state of Minnesota (see below).

Source: Google Maps (<http://maps.google.com>)

For the purposes of this study, the Twin Cities metropolitan region was defined as a 50-mile radius with a central point chosen along the I-94 corridor between the two cities in zip code 55104. Wisconsin counties in the larger Twin Cities metropolitan region were not included, but might become part of a future report.

The Directory of Twin Cities Green Businesses

We identified 488 Twin Cities businesses that belong to the green product and service directory and organized them by five primary sectors. Some companies, due to the nature of their business, are listed in multiple sectors. The online version of the directory can be found at www.mngreendirectory.org.

These businesses either provided their own green product and service descriptions or the data was obtained from the business' website. This directory is an initial attempt to identify metropolitan green product and service businesses. It is expected that the directory will grow and change over time under the direction of a marketing organization organized to promote the Twin Cities green marketplace.

AND TRADE POLICY

www.iatp.org

We are developing alternative economic models that include clean sources of energy such as wind power and biofuel that would spur rural development. We're working with landowners to form cooperatives that promote sustainable forest management. We're advocating for green businesses and farms that reduce toxic runoff into the Great Lakes and Mississippi River.
